

Contact Information:

David Woodard
Safety Compliance Management, Inc.
111 Deerwood Road, Suite 345
San Ramon, California 94583
Phone: 925-362-2265
<http://www.scm-safety.com/index.html>
dwoodard@scm-safety.com

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Safety Compliance Management, Inc. Offers New RCRA Online Course that Delivers Access to a Remote Instructor™ and Meets all U.S. EPA Requirements

San Ramon, CA – July 7, 2004 – Safety Compliance Management, Inc. (SCM) now offers professionals who handle hazardous wastes a cost-effective yet comprehensive online course that meets all requirements of the U.S. EPA Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA). The RCRA Hazardous Waste Generator course also offers students interaction via email with SCM's staff of instructors in an effort to help each individual student apply the material to his or her job. The course can be accessed through SCM's web site at www.scm-safety.com or at www.hazmatschool.com.

“Professionals who take our RCRA Hazardous Waste Generator online course will not only get the content needed for certification but they will also receive guidance from a highly experienced and skilled SCM instructor. Our goal is to deliver in an online course what students would traditionally receive in a course they would attend in a classroom setting, giving them more value in addition to certification,” said Paul Gantt, President of SCM.

With web-based training, companies or professionals that work with hazardous materials can save costs and meet all government environmental, health and safety requirements. “Our clients appreciate the flexibility in taking a course when it is most convenient while minimizing the impact to their normal work activities,” said Gantt.

The RCRA Hazardous Waste Generator online course can be taken for initial certification as well as for ongoing refresher requirements. This course, along with Hazard Communication, DOT-Hazmat Employee and HAZWOPER courses offered by SCM, give professionals who handle hazardous wastes the ability to cost-effectively meet basic hazardous waste training requirements.

About SCM

Since 1991 Safety Compliance Management, Inc. (SCM) has provided cost-effective programs to handle environmental, health, and safety concerns for clients in construction and general industries. SCM specializes in written program development, compliance, site inspections, training (both web-based and traditional), and emergency response. SCM's professionals have a diverse experience in environmental health and safety, offering clients an unparalleled knowledge of the industry.

###